CHARACTER HISTORY

The product of infidelity, Ashton was born to a human woman and her High Elf lover. When he was born his mother's filandering ways were discovered as the child had pointed ears. In a rage, his mother's husband cast them from his home. The years that followed were hard but they managed to find shelter and enough food to survive. Ashton's mother warned that if he were to ever return to the village where he was born, the townsfolk would seek to kill him for what he represents. One evening, Ashton returned from the market to find his mother dead, her throat slit. Believing her stories, he assumed her husband had found them. He packed what few belongings he had and set out on his own in search of protection and a place to call home. This led him to Taldora.
